'BIG FOUR" ELEVENS FOR NEXT SEASON.

Nucleus from Which the Teams Will Have to Be Formed.

Yale Suffers Most and Harvard Least from Graduating Players.

NEXT YEAR'S PROBABLE CAPTAINS.

Cabot Has Already Been Chosen to Lead the Crimson-Cochran, Princeton; Rodgers, Yale, and Minds, Pennsylvania, the Other Likely One.

Princeton, Nov. 23 .- The Princeton football team will begin next season with fairly good prospects. Only four places will have to be filled. They are: Left end, left tackle, centre and quarter back. Brokaw, Church, Galley and Smith will graduate. It will be easier to fill Brokaw's shoes than It will be the others, as men like Smith, Church and Galley are not picked up every day. Church's loss will be especially felt Cochran will undoubtedly be re-elected

New Haven, Nov. 23.-Yale will next year again be hard pressed to turn out a creditable football eleven. Of the fourteen men who took part in the game ngainst Princeton, only five will return to college next year. Captain Murphy, Chamberlain, Murray, Chadwick, Bass, Fincke, Mills, Van Every and Hinkey will graduate next Spring, leaving only Rodgers, Connor, Benjamin, Durstin and Hine as a nucleus upon which to build the next nucleus upon which to build the next eleven.

The first three of these are certain to retain their positions, barring accidents. Durstin was only a substitute this year, but has lots of football in him, which only need development. Hine is a medical student whose work is so pressing that it is possible that he will not try for the team again.

Rodgers will probably be the choice for Rodgers will probably be the choice for captain.

Cambridge, Nov. 23.-Harvard is fortunate in the few men who will have to leave the eleven next season. The line practically will be as it was this year. Frank Shaw, the centre, has only played three years, and though he graduates, he will probably return to one of the pro-fessional schools. Merryman, the substi-tute tackle, is the only player who will be ressound scalous. Merryman, the substitute tackle, is the only player who will be missed in the line.

Among the backs the loss by graduation will be the greatest. It will be difficult to find a pair of half backs who worked together as Wrightington and Dunlop did.
There is some chance of Dunlop going to the law school, and as he has not played his four years, he will be eligible next sea son. Quarter Backs Beale and Sullivan complete the list of coming graduates.

The following men of this year's squad will be back: Captain Cabot, Moulton
Lewis and Graydon, ends; Haughton,
Wheeler, Donnid, Swain and Milis, tackles;
Norton Shaw, Bouve, Sargent and Burden, guards: Doucette and Hoague, centres;
Cochenne and Wordsworth, quarter a is;
Brine, Cozzens and Livermore, halibacks;
Dibblee and Brown, fullbacks.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 23.-Of this year's Pennsylvania team, Minds, Morice, Weeks, Overfield, Uffenheimer, B. Dickson and Boyle will return and play hext year. There s not the slightest doubt that Minds will be the captain.

Those who will be missed next Fail are Gelbert, Woodruff, Wharton and Farrar. Farrar's place can be easily filled, outland is Gelbert's likely successor, and Wentz, ex-Princeton, and McCracken, the big freshman, are likely to be the garras.

Benjamin was affected the most seriously of all the players. His father took him in charge at the Murray Hill Hotel Saturday right, and he was given, by a physician's orders, absolute quiet yesterday. Benjamin's injuries are nominal, but the shock to his nervous system was severe. It manifested itself in a peculiar way before he left the game.

Old Jem Mace's Fine Physical Development.

Jem Mace, the veteran English boxing champion, is truly one of the most wonderful men of the age, despite his three-score-and-six of years. When Mace arrived from England on Sunday his old friends, who had not seen him since his last visit to these shores, more than twenty years ago, were astounded at his remarkably youthful appearance, activity and dash, but if they saw him stripped to the buff yesterday forenoon as he posed for the Journal artists they would have been Looking at Mace, one sees an almost perfect physique. His chest perhaps is the most noticeable feature. It is broad and deep, and its expansion is terrific when he fills his lungs with air. Mace's back is covered with muscles that show distinctly under his pink skin. His arms are long and show huge bunches of muscle. In fact, the old man is as "hard as nails" and one of the very best specimens of the trained athlete above the waist that has been seen in this country in a long while. His legs are very lithe and are the ideal limbs of a runner; he has, in fact, frequently excelled in feats of pedestrianism.

The famous pugilist has two remarkable hands, muscled and as hard as steel. They both have large lumps on their backs, as the result of what is termed in fistic purlance being 'knocked up." The knuckles being forced up by the perpetual landing of hard punches on an adversary cause the sinews and small muscles to harden and toughen like bone. Mace's hands are literally covered with these lumps, and it is pleasant to hear him recall some of his famous battles by referring to the lumps. For instance, he will point to his right hand and say, "I got this in my fight with Bob Brettle and this with "Nosey" Joe Coburn in New Orleans, and these with Tom King, Tom Allen and Joe Goss," and so on. Yesterder Mace arese varify and took a brisk walk with his trainer, Lew Morris, as far as Central Park, after which he breakfasted. In the afternoon he held an informal reception at the Gilsey House. This will be his last day in town until after his bout with Mike Donovan, on December 14, for to-morrow he will go to Joe Little's place, at Occunic, N. J., where he will begin a full three weeks' training for his contest.

Henjamin came up to Captain Fincke and said that he was unable to remember the signals. The eleven had to go ahead, after whispering to him what combination was expected. This proved futile, and Benjamin was led from the field suffering from keen hysteria. He will probably be taken to his home, at Garrison-on-the-Hudson, to rest a week.

Clergymen Organize to Make a House-to-House Canvass of People Who Don't Go to Church.

A meeting of Protestant ministers representing the different churches in Williamsburg and Greenpoint was held yesterday in the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association, on South Eighth street, near Bedford avenue. The meeting was to formulate a scheme for wider religious movement in that section of Brooklyn. There were eighteen clergymen present, but it is expected that when the work is thoroughly under way the number will be increased to about forty. The project is to make a house-to-house canvass and Invite those who do not attend some church to
